Editor's PREFACE

This fiftieth volume of American Book-Prices Current is a second record of rare books in wartime. It is, perhaps, one of the most interesting volumes of the long series of which it is a part. In it may be seen the fulfillment of the promise held out toward the end of last season of markedly higher prices for rare books and a possible threat to stable rare book prices for some time. (Or, are rare book prices ever stable?)

Unlike its predecessor, the season just concluded was studded with sales which would have been important at any time. After such a year as has been recorded here, one wonders just how many rare books the market can absorb. Possibly the very wide variety of material offered is part of the answer to such an hypothetical question. The season started well with the second part of the sale of the Biddle papers at which the prices fetched by the first part were matched or bettered. Exactly a week later the phenomenally successful Crowninshield sale of modern French illustrated books was held. These prices were very much in line with the trend observed last season toward general activity in illustrated books; several sales throughout the season—notably the Speiser sale—repeated in large part the success of the Crowninshield sale. Other sales deserving especial mention were the Carr sale of Lincolniana, the Duncan sale of Indian captivities, the Kalbfleisch sale fancily titled "The Art of the Book", the Morgan sale which included examples of the great series of catalogues prepared for the various Morgan collections, the Sachs sale of rarities in English literature, the highly interesting Stowell sale of books on international law, the Flanagan and Green sales, the Edgar sale of Dickens material, the first part of the McHenry papers, the two parts of the sale of duplicates from the New York Historical Society, and the interesting sale, by order of the Alien Property Custodian, of the Yamanaka & Co., Inc. reference library.

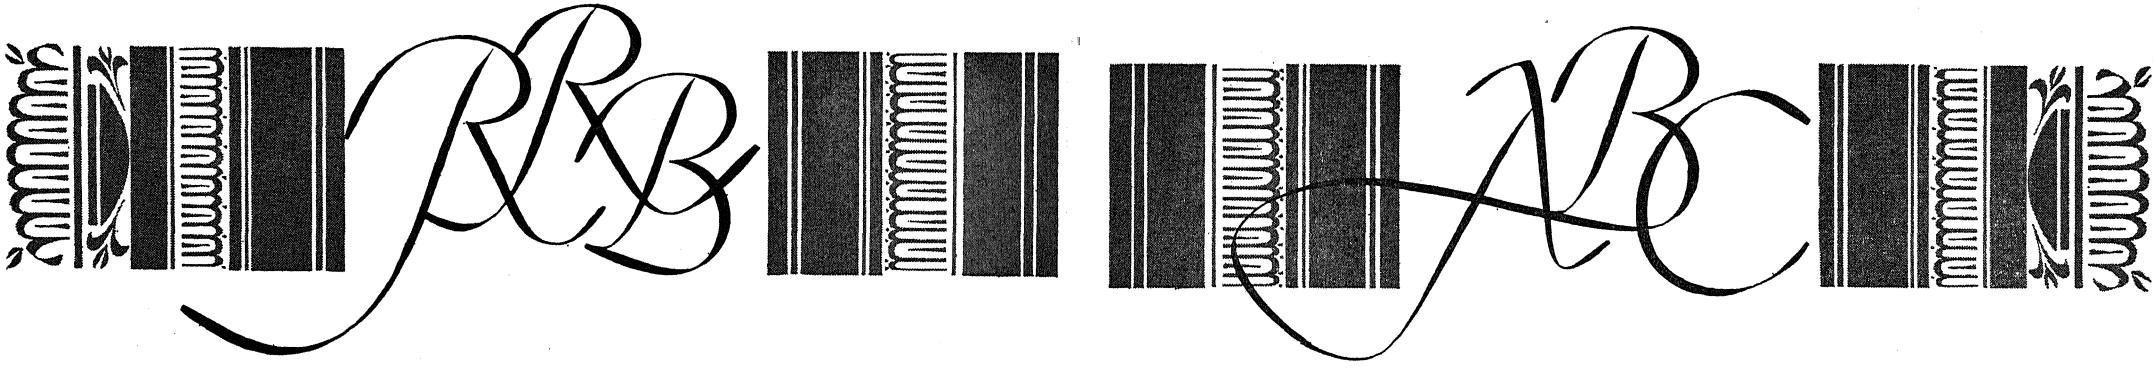

One hundred and one sales (two less than last season) have been recorded, listing about 18,000 items (an increase of about fifty percent over last season). The larger number of items recorded reflects the general increase in prices of rare books and is due in large measure to the unusual number of titles which appear in American Book-Prices Current for the first time.

The high number of first appearances in the records has made the compilation of this volume more interesting than has been the case before. The editor pro tempore continues to regret the absence of S/Sgt. Edward Lazare, the permanent editor, partly because the sergeant would have prevented many errors, but most particularly because the sergeant would have found the season much to his liking.

A HALF CENTURY OF Rare Book Auctions IN THE UNITED STATES

With this volume the price records of American book auctions reaches a fiftieth volume. The long row of red bound volumes extends itself solidly on hundreds of reference shelves, and no one buys or sells in the field of old and rare books without referring to its pages.

The editors and the publishers of this series have always looked upon its right production as a responsibility which they have assumed for the libraries, the collectors and the book trade of the country. Any omissions, errors, or misinterpretations would reflect on the cumulative usefulness of the project. Luther S. Livingston set high standards for editorial diligence and authority, standards to which succeeding editors have loyally adhered. Three publishers—the Dodds, Dutton, and Bowker—have in turn seen that the continuity of this program has been carefully upheld.

Dodd, Mead published a four-volume summary of auction records, American and British, for 1886-1904; Dutton made an index for this series for the years 1916 to 1922; and the present publishers improved this plan by issuing priced indexes for the years 1923-1932 and for 1933-1940, and are to issue a five-year index to cover 1941 to 1945.

To the editors falls the great responsibility of translating the priced records into a single alphabet in harmony with the entries of previous years. They must have encyclopedic knowledge of the literature of every field and of editions in all their intricate variations. They must have an unerring eye for any slips in the cataloged descriptions. They must have at hand a complete bibliographical reference library by which to verify information. In Dr. Paltsits' article, which follows, the chronology of editors of American Book-Prices Current is given down to 1939. In that year Jacob Blanck became editor and in 1940, when Mr. Blanck went to the Library of Congress on a special research assignment, Edward Lazare became editor. He served in this capacity for three years until called to the armed forces in 1943, at which time Colton Storm, of the William L. Clements Library, assumed the editorship of American Book-Prices Current.

Because auction bidding does not set any true values in the price range under $5.00, for either booksellers or their customers, such titles are omitted.

No one can tell, not even the auction houses, at the opening of a season how many books of value will change hands. Therefore, these volumes of record must vary in size. The records in this fiftieth volume cover many more important and significant books than those of recent years. The year seems to have been a turning point in book auction activity. Everything points to another significant year in 1944-1945.

It seems most appropriate that this fiftieth volume of an undertaking into which so much scholarship, such intimate knowledge of books and the devotion of bibliographers have been put should not pass without a special note of appreciation and the users of American Book-Prices Current will find interest in the chapters of books auction history which are made part of this anniversary volume. October, 1944.

The Beginnings of American Book Auction Records during the First Quarter Century

The idea of the cumulation of book-auction records arose out of necessity, particularly in the business of selling rare books. The dealers were dependent upon bibliographies, priced catalogs, and other scattered media for estimates of rarity or value. It was a time-consuming process, and a short-cut time-saver was a desideratum. In England Auction Prices was established to take care of the English and to some extent the Continental trade, but American books were featured only in a very limited way.

It was Luther Samuel Livingston who conceived American Book-Prices Current while employed in the rare-book department of Dodd, Mead & Company, of New York City. In announcing the publication of the first volume to appear in September of 1895, Dodd, Mead & Co. stated in the subscription circular that "the compilation" would "be similar in arrangement and scope to the English publication of that name, and, in addition" there would "be included reports of all important autographs and manuscripts sold at auction during the year." No set limit as to selling price was to be "absolutely maintained, but all items likely to interest the collector and dealer" were to be included; also "particulars as to size, binding, and condition of copies," if available. And besides the insertion of occasional bibliographical notes, "an introductory chapter, giving a general view of the sales for the year, and an elaborate and complete index," were to be added. Thus the plan was defined. The price set was six dollars, net. The "Preface" was written by Mr. Livingston and signed with his initials, dated "September 15, 1895." In it he elaborated on the reasons for an American Book-Prices Current, "prepared upon the same general lines as the English compilation of similar character," then in its ninth year. Although the English volumes, in his judgment, had "become almost indispensable" for reference, they made no record of "the large number of books by American authors and books relating to American subjects." Mr. Livingston planned to have his first volume, and its successors, to be "even more useful to American booksellers, librarians, and book-buyers in general." It was proposed to record "almost every lot selling for $5.00 and upwards;" and also "hundreds of items selling for $3.00 and over, more particularly first editions of American authors, and that large class of comparatively low-priced Americana for which the Brinley Catalogue" had been "the only accessible record of value." Moreover, "low-priced books in other classes" were included in his plan, "wherever it seemed desirable to do so, without making the compilation too extensive." Mr. Livingston explained his method of editing titles from auctioneers' catalogs. The labor this process involved did not permit "the necessary comparison and re-writing of titles to bring about absolute uniformity of entry." He discussed some of the other problems of preparing such a book, and the inevitable errors that must, forsooth, creep in, "and from which no catalogue ever yet printed was absolutely free." If the first volume received "the necessary financial support from the trade and book-buyers generally," he said, "the compilation would be continued annually," and he hoped with improvements. The first volume covered the season from September 1, 1894, to September 1, 1895, of books, manuscripts and autographs sold at auction, in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia. The edition was 400 copies.

The work of compiling the material for the first volume was done entirely by Mr. Livingston; and this volume was the first upon which his name ever appeared on a title-page. In other volumes he was assisted by Miss Ida Stewart, and by Miss C. E. Dyett who gradually took almost entire charge of the routine compilation of copy for the printer, prepared on cards.

The second volume for 1896, of sales in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Cincinnati, limited to an edition of 600 copies, was on a changed plan, an alphabetical arrangement by author or title for the books, and a separate alphabet for autographs and manuscripts, with a subject or topical index. The alphabetical system became an established method for future years; but it was not till 1914 that the English Book Prices changed from the sale-by-sale method to the single alphabet arrangement. Mr. Livingston's change to alphabetical arrangement was made on the advice and wishes of some professional friends, especially Wilberforce Eames.

Cincinnati sales were included only in the volumes of 1896 and 1897; Chicago only in 1897; and New York, Boston and Philadelphia were included from the first volume through the series under the editorship of Mr. Livingston and his immediate successor, Victor Hugo Paltsits, during the years 1895-1916. The editions varied in the number of copies issued, from 400 (the first year) to as many as 960 in 1902; and in 1901 and 1902 there were 25 and 30 copies respectively, issued on large paper, quarto. The first introduction of a section recording the sale of broadsides appeared in the volume for 1900; and volumes II to VIII (1896 to 1902) were printed at the University Press, Cambridge, Mass. With the increase of auction sales, inducing economy of pages, the index was dropped from the 1906 volume, and thereafter. The volume for 1910 was the first bearing the partnership of Dodd & Livingston on the title-page. It was in the volume for 1912 that Mr. Livingston made his first acknowledgment to his "assistant, Miss C. E. Dyett, for her capable work upon the book," and in 1913 for "her accurate and painstaking work," she having "for the most part" prepared the printer's copy.

The connection of Mr. Livingston with the series ended in 1914, and that volume was carried through by Miss Dyett under the supervision of Robert H. Dodd, its publisher, who wrote for it a "Review of the Sales of the Past Year," to September 1, 1914. It was in this volume that Mr. Dodd announced that Victor H. Paltsits had been secured "as editor-in-chief of this work," and it would "insure its continuation for the future on the same high plane of excellence." Mr. Dodd and Mr. Paltsits had long known each other as friends. Mr. Dodd employed the latter for the Christmas holiday trade in December, 1887, in the bookstore of Dodd, Mead & Co. at Broadway and Clinton Place, where Mr. Livingston had started with that firm in that year as a clerk. Mr. Livingston was then already a highly competent bookseller's clerk and exhibited a prodigious memory, freely placed at the disposal of all who made inquiry of him. Mr. Paltsits was just a stop-gap for the holiday trade, and on January 1, 1888, began his career among books with the Lenox Library on Fifth Avenue, founded by James Lenox, philanthropist and extraordinary bibliophile.

Mr. Paltsits was editor-in-chief of the volumes for 1915 and 1916, assisted by Miss Dyett. The 1917 year was carried through (Preface signed "C.K.") and published by Robert H. Dodd, who transferred the rights of American Book-Prices Current to the firm of E. P. Dutton & Co., as he was retiring from business. The Dutton firm published the volumes of 1918 and 1919. Miss Dyett for a time continued the compilation for that firm; then moved to California. It is of interest to recall, that, upon Mr. Dodd's retirement from the rare-book business, he liquidated his stock, which was sold during the season recorded in the Dutton volume of 1919, which was twenty-five years after the beginning of the first volume of American Book-Prices Current.

Mary H. Warren was the editor for Dutton and continued her work when the publishing of the series was taken over by R. R. Bowker Co. in 1926 at the time that the publishing and bookselling departments of Dutton's separated.

Mr. Livingston also compiled Auction Prices of Books. A representative record arranged in alphabetical order from the commencement of the English Book-Prices Current in 1886 and the American Book-Prices Current in 1894 to 1904, and including some thousands of important auction quotations of earlier date, published by Dodd, Mead & Co. in 1905 in four volumes, in an edition of 750 sets. He had conceived this compilation in the year 1896. In his preface to the first volume he told just how he worked to bring it to fruition, and remarked thus: "Pure Bibliography for itself alone, like pure Science, does not often pay. The worker in one field as in the other must make his work practical. As 'applied' Science often brings reward to the worker, so this specimen of 'applied' Bibliography has enough promise in it to induce its publishers to print it. Let us hope they may have no cause to regret it."

In the Papers of the Bibliographical Society of America, vol. 8 (1914), and separately (Cambridge, Mass., 1915), George Parker Winship has written a biographical appreciation of Mr. Livingston, born at Grand Rapids, Mich., July 7, 1864; died at Cambridge, Mass., December 24, 1914, having been chosen only on November 30th, less than a month before, by the Corporation of Harvard University as the first Librarian of the Harry Elkins Widener Collection at Harvard, and was buried with the University's honors. John Thomas Lee, a bibliographer who had never met Mr. Livingston in person, paid him a high eulogy in The Nation for 1915, pp. 258, 290, which those who knew Mr. Livingston well, including the present writer, would fully endorse.

DR. VICTOR HUGO PALTSITS

Some Famous Auctions & AUCTIONEERS

Somebody, and he could have been no bookman, once said that American Book-Prices Current as reading matter was less inspiring than the telephone directory. This deservedly anonymous somebody was no book collector else he would have realized that within the fifty volumes of American Book-Prices Current is the historical essence of the past half century of American book collecting.

Certainly there had been book collecting before that fall day in 1895 when Luther S. Livingston issued Volume I of American Book-Prices Current. According to the records* there had been about 4500 auction sales of literary material in the United States since the books belonging to the late reverend and learned Mr. Ebenezer Pemberton were sold at auction in Boston on July 2, 1717. Publication of the first volume of ABC came when book collecting in America had emerged on a scale suggesting what was to come. Our anonymous commentator must have viewed the several volumes of American Book-Prices Current with a somewhat prejudiced eye for the information embodied, but not embalmed, in ABC constitutes the most exact record of not only the books and manuscripts sold but recalls the collectors, dealers, and auction houses of the past fifty years.

In his first preface Mr. Livingston wrote that "prices which even five years ago would have been called exorbitant are to-day considered moderate. The demand exceeds the supply and at each sale some buyer is prepared to pay, for a fine copy, a little more than the book has ever brought at any previous sale. This can be said of the rarest books only, for the commoner books, and especially inferior copies, have not shown any marked increase in price." In that first year Mr. Livingston recorded that the second highest price realized during the season was $1450 for a copy of that gem of every collector's dream, Tamerlane, which, curiously enough, brought $400 less than when it was sold only three years before. This decrease may reflect the fact that it had been rebound in "a handsome Parisian binding which cost upwards of $300"—which seems to indicate that the late 19th century collector of American first editions appreciated original binding, current belief to the contrary notwithstanding. Mr. Livingston was also impressed by the "remarkable advance in prices in recent years . . . exemplified most strikingly in the second Foote sale. Mr. Foote's . . .'Vicar of Wakefield'. . . cost him $75 about ten years ago, and sold for $525..." But these increases in value were modest as compared with certain other increases that were to be recorded in subsequent volumes of *American Book-Prices Current.

When Mr. Livingston expressed amazement regarding increased values he had no way of knowing that Item No. 210 in the Foote* sale (Part 1) was to become the classic example of increased prices. The piece was a first edition of Poe's Tales of the Grotesque and Arabesque, Philadelphia, 1840, bound in full crushed levant morocco, in which was inserted an inscribed prospectus for The Stylus, Poe's projected magazine. The item realized the unexciting sum of $36 and subsequently passed into the collection of Stephen H. Wakeman who was sufficiently astute to realize that the tail was wagging the dog. In 1924, when the Wakeman collection was sold by the American Art Association the prospectus was sold, without benefit of the rebound volumes, to Walter M. Hill of Chicago for $1000. The prospectus was to show a further increase in price when it turned up in the catalog of the library of Jerome Kern and on the afternoon of Tuesday, January 22, 1929, it brought $3000.

In 1903 Bangs & Company was purchased by John Anderson, Jr., but only after it had sold no less than an estimated 1,000,000 volumes including the libraries of Colonel Brantz Mayer, the William Harris Arnold library of American and English first editions, the Marshall C. Lefferts collection of English literature and the first part of Bishop John Fletcher Hurst's collection of Americana, most noted for its collections of Franklin imprints and books from the library of George Washington.

After absorbing Bangs & Company, John Anderson, Jr., continued to issue his modest catalogs, slim productions which scarcely resemble the remarkable pieces of printing we know now. His first catalog, dated February 6, 1900, is a thin 16-page pamphlet listing 304 items, few of which received more than two lines of description. It was a day of penny bids which explains such curious prices as $1.63 for an A. L. s. of Henry Clay to Judge Robbins of Rhode Island on "interesting topics" and 38 cents for a first edition of W. S. Gilbert's Song of a Savoyard. This same catalog also listed an item which has since become far more desirable than it was in 1900: a broadside edition of Franklin's The Way to Wealth; Poor Richard Improved of which Franklin wrote "The Piece, being universally approved, was copied in all the newspapers of the American continent and was reprinted in Britain on a large sheet of paper, to be stuck up in houses." This particular lot found no bidder and, according to Mr. Anderson's own records, was passed.

*The Foote books were sold in 1894-5 at Bangs & Company, with rooms at 739-741 Broadway, New York City. At the time of the Foote sale the firm was in its sixty-sixth year of continuous business; it continued until April 1, 1903, when it was absorbed by John Anderson, Jr., who was to become one of the world's greatest auctioneers and, in a very real sense, ancestor of today's Parke-Bernet Galleries.

At the same time Philadelphia and Boston were not inactive; Philadelphia's Samuel T. Freeman & Company* and Stan. Henkels* were very much in evidence. These firms, with histories going back to the first decade of the 19th century, had disposed of thousands of libraries but none so important as those sold in New York by Anderson and, later, by the American Art Association. Nor was Boston silent. The most important auction firm in that city was C. F. Libbie & Company which held its first sale on April 3, 1878. In total number of volumes sold Libbie's record is a close second to Bangs' and among their important sales was that of the autograph collection of E. H. Leffingwell in 1891 and the fifth part of the George Brinley library which Libbie had succeeded in luring away from New York where the preceding four parts had been sold; the Jonas H. French library was sold in 1904 and in 1915 the bibliographical library of George E. Littlefield was dispersed. Incidentally, it was in the French sale that a copy of The Torrent and the Night Before, by E. A. Gardiner (!), first edition, inscribed by the author, was bundled with other pamphlets and sold under the descriptive heading: Presentation Copies.

In New York, which early took and maintained the lead for important sales in the United States, we find during the years 1900 to 1906 the sale of the library of Thomas Jefferson McKee which firmly established John Anderson, Jr., as the country's outstanding auctioneer of literary properties. In passing let it be recorded that it was at this sale that Robert Burns' own copy of The Works of Shakespear, Edinburgh, 1771, was knocked down to the legendary George D. Smith for $111; Herman Melville's Timoleon brought $6.50 and that same author's Battle-Pieces was sold to ubiquitous "order" for $1.00. The next important sale cried by Anderson was that of Bishop John Fletcher Hurst, 1904-05.

The years 1908-09 marked a definite turning point in collecting of American first editions. During these years, and again the Anderson Galleries carried the sales, four great libraries were dispersed: the library of Henry W. Poor, J. Chester Chamberlain's collections of American first editions, and the libraries of Frank Maier and Louis I. Haber. The Chamberlain and Maier collections, both of which are still quite properly considered monuments in the field of American first editions, seemed to crystalize an interest which until then had been heavily shadowed by the desire of collectors to acquire English rarities. A few years later, 1911-12, Anderson sold the huge library of Robert Hoe which realized a total of $1,932,056 and established the all-time record for American sales. At this sale George D. Smith established the then record price for a single book by paying $50,000 for the Gutenberg Bible which went into the collection of Henry E. Huntington.

*Samuel T. Freeman & Company, founded in 1805. Stan. (Stanislaus Vincent) Henkels, with Robert A. Tripple, established Henkels & Tripple in 1882 which, in 1883, became Stan. V. Henkels & Co. Mr. Henkels ceased operations under his own name in 1886 and became associated with, successively, Thomas Birch's Sons (established in the 1840's), Davis & Harvey (established about 1860), Samuel T. Freeman & Company and, in 1913, reestablished himself under his own name.

The unheard of success of the Hoe sale was sufficient to convince even the most skeptical that the United States was able to produce great totals for great libraries and the American Art Association* which, until then, had been selling objects of art almost exclusively, decided to concentrate on rare books and manuscripts. The American Art Association showed a remarkable sense of good business and persuaded Anderson's chief of the book department, Arthur Swann, to become associated with them. From this time on the honors were more or less evenly divided between the American Art Association and the Anderson Galleries, with Anderson disposing of the libraries of Winston H. Hagen (1918), Herschel V. Jones (1918), John Quinn (1924), William Harris Arnold (1924), Beverley Chew (1924-25), George Barr McCutcheon (1925), John L. Clawson (1926), R. B. Adam (1926) and the duplicates acquired by Henry E. Huntington (1916-25). The American Art Association during this same period disposed of much important literary material, the most outstanding sales being those of the libraries of M. C. D. Borden (1913), Brayton Ives (1915), Walter Thomas Wallace (1920), William F. Gable (1923-25) and Stephen H. Wakeman (1924).

In the fateful year 1929 the library of Jerome Kern was sold† at the Anderson Galleries and the rest is legend. For any number of reasons the Kern sale will go down in bookselling history as one of its most fantastic and incredible episodes. It will be remembered that the year 1929 was the year in which Wall Street cracked after a period of frenzied finance unparalleled in the history of the country. It is an unfortunate corollary that many of the fine books acquired by Mr. Kern are more or less cursed by the fact that they were sold at such a time but as a spectacle there was nothing like it before, and, let us hope, that never again will there be anything like it.

Several months after the Kern sale these two leading American auction houses combined to form the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries.* In 1937, following a reorganization, Hiram Parke, Otto Bernet, Arthur Swann and other long-time officers and employees of the combined galleries, withdrew and established a new auction house in New York under the name of Parke-Bernet Galleries, Inc. Eighteen months later, the Parke-Bernet Galleries having made a remarkably rapid rise, acquired the bankrupt parent firm. The Parke-Bernet Galleries as of today is unquestionably the leading auction house in the United States, and during a brief period of operation has sold books and other literary property from the collections of John A. Spoor, William Randolph Hearst, A. Edward Newton, Carolyn Wells Houghton, Condé Nast, Frank Crowninshield and others.

*The American Art Association was founded in 1883 by Thomas E. Kirby who retired in 1923 after selling his firm to Cortlandt Field Bishop.

†January 7, 21, 1929, at which time Mitchell Kennerley was president of the galleries.

In this brief account of the American auction scene since first publication of ABC, we have been able to touch on but the highest points. Tomorrow's bibliophile, if he is sufficiently curious, will find in ABC references to the dozens of other galleries that rose and flourished (and died) during the fifty year span we have attempted to cover. No account of American book auction houses would be complete without at least mention of the late Guido Bruno who operated briefly as an auctioneer in 1930; and, surely, the roster must include the name of Max Harzof who established the G. A. Baker & Company Galleries in 1938 and restored a flavor to book auctions that had all but disappeared; nor can we omit the name of Charles F. Heartman who so skillfully combines country dinners, pecans and books; the short-lived National Galleries, and the names of Silo, Chicago Book & Art Auctions, Merwin-Clayton and Newark Galleries demand more than brief mention. And today's volumes of ABC record new names: Swann Galleries, Baker & Brooks, Kende, City Book Auction and others where something of the old tradition still maintains.

But to return to our anonymous commentator whom we deliberately lost in our first paragraphs: American Book-Prices Current is far from being as dull as the telephone book. To anyone who has attended even a moderately interesting sale ABC is more than a cold compilation—rather it is an exciting record of men and their books.

*Both galleries had been operated separately under the direction of Cortlandt Field Bishop who purchased the American Art Association in 1923 and the Anderson galleries in 1927.

A Half-Century of Rare Book Prices

The prices of rare books are a mystery compared to which the riddle of the Sphinx is as simple as an Abecedarium. A most excellent friend of mine—a dealer of good repute—was accused by a satisfied customer of selecting prices for his materials by contemplating a crystal ball. My friend the dealer confessed that he used no scientific method to price his goods and, being unable to determine how he did arrive at his prices, he thereupon suspended a crystal ball over his desk so that all the world might know from what mystic source came the reasonable prices on which depended his livelihood.

Paul Angle (quoting a Chicago book dealer) defined rare books as those which are "important, desirable, and hard to get." I have agreed with that succinct definition for some time and I am more firmly in agreement after several days spent turning the many pages of American Book-Prices Current for the past fifty years. This definition fails in respect to the book trade only because it refers to genuinely rare books while the term "rare books," as commonly used, includes a great many books which are not rare. These latter books are the ones which fluctuate wildly in price over a period of years and then disappear from the records, while the truly rare books—the "important, desirable, and hard to get"—rise with fair regularity as they become harder to get.

Nearly ten years ago, I appraised a large library for tax purposes as of about 1890, 1911, 1920, and 1934. The books had been collected by Ogden Goelet over a period of thirty or forty years in the latter half of the nineteenth century. I was struck by the fact that the total value of the library in each of those years was within a few thousand dollars of the total achieved by the collection when it was sold in 1935 in spite of the fact that the prices of individual books varied greatly from decade to decade. I formed the theory then that large collections of books formed over a long time do not fluctuate much in total value. My recent digging and delving in the past volumes of American Book-Prices Current leaves me more firmly certain that there is a workable theory about the values of rare book collections lying around loose somewhere if anyone has the time to work it out. Perhaps it is that the truly great and rare books (once they are universally recognized as such) rise slowly and steadily in value while the prices of all other books rise and fall like an erratic geyser. The Lothian library is a case in point. Selections from that fine library were sold by the late Marquess of Lothian in 1932 and they brought a respectable sum. A few of the books sold would not fetch equal prices today, but other unsold books, less desirable in 1932, are more valuable now so that the same total for an identical number of books might be secured today.

The Clements Library, formed over a long period and held for a longer time, seems an excellent example of this permanence of total value in spite of changes in individual values. On the whole, the higher priced books in the Clements Library have held their values pretty well and many of the "ill-considered trifles" of another time, bought either in a temporary flurry of enthusiasm or of a keen connoisseurship of Americana, are treasures at this moment. I think the same condition would prevail in any current re-appraisal of one of the other great American libraries such as the Pierpont Morgan, the Henry E. Huntington, the Henry C. Folger, or the John Carter Brown.

While looking through Volume I of American Book-Prices Current, I chanced upon the following remark by the first editor, Luther S. Livingston: "The books most in favor with collectors in this country... are early English literature, first editions of English and American authors and the rarer Americana." We haven't changed much in fifty years, have we? Of course, I was curious to know what had been the particular books in each of these categories which had interested collectors of that day and I was especially interested to know how those books had fared through the years between then and now.

Of early English literature, there was John Milton's Poems, a copy of which was sold in 1895 for $370. Copies of the book appear in the records fifty-one times, ranging from $9 for an imperfect copy to $6,750 for the Kern copy. By approximately five-year intervals these prices were obtained: 1900—$490; 1907—$490; 1912—$440; 1917—$250; 1920—$790; 1925—$1,450; 1930—$1,650; 1936—$3,100; 1941—$625; 1944—$775. As far as I can determine there is no rhythm or pattern or cycle of rare book prices, except that with books of the importance and desirability of Milton's Poems there is a tendency for large jumps in prices to occur by decades. For instance, copies of a book will range from $200 to $600 for about ten years and the following ten years will range from $700 to $1,000. It seems to take a book a little longer to cross over beyond $1,000.

A slightly rarer book (if we are to judge by the number of sales recorded) is George Herbert's The Temple. Only twenty-five sales occured, including several imperfect copies. The copy sold in 1895 fetched $1,050; it was described as one of three known copies. The second copy was sold fifteen years later and seems to have been somewhat less fine, for it reached only $305, but when the 1895 copy was resold in 1911, it brought $2,000. There was a rise of $200 when a copy was sold in 1927 and nine years later a copy reached $3,600.

In Mr. Livingston's category of English first editions, I presume he meant such books as Robert Louis Stevenson's A Child's Garden of Verses, of which (exclusive of association copies) ninety-five sales are recorded. In the early years the prices were moderate or low, good copies being easy to come by; 1895—$19; 1898—$8; 1902—$9.50; and so on with a gradual rise to 1920 when a copy fetched $80. In 1925 a presentation copy brought $2,000 and ordinary copies sold between $90 and $140; since then the prices have ranged according to condition, between $17 and $205.

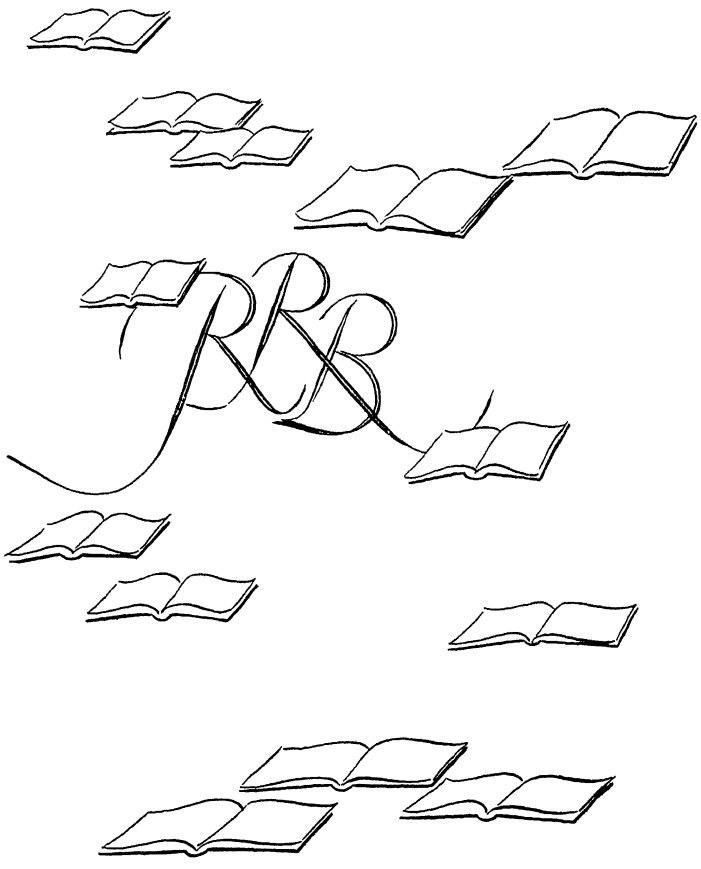

American first editions present some interesting reading. One of the shortest sets of records, of course, is Edgar A. Poe's Tamerlane, which appeared four times. In 1895 it brought $1,450; in 1901, $2,050; in 1919, $11,600; in 1939, $4,300 (imperfect). That is a rare book, but so, too, is Nathaniel Hawthorne's Fanshawe, in spite of its appearance thirty-seven times in fifty years. The 1895 copy (appropriately enough) was the lowest —$155 and the highest price was reached in 1930 when a copy changed hands for $5,800. Before 1924 no copy passed $1,000, but since then eight of the twelve copies sold have passed that figure, most of them being considerably above it.

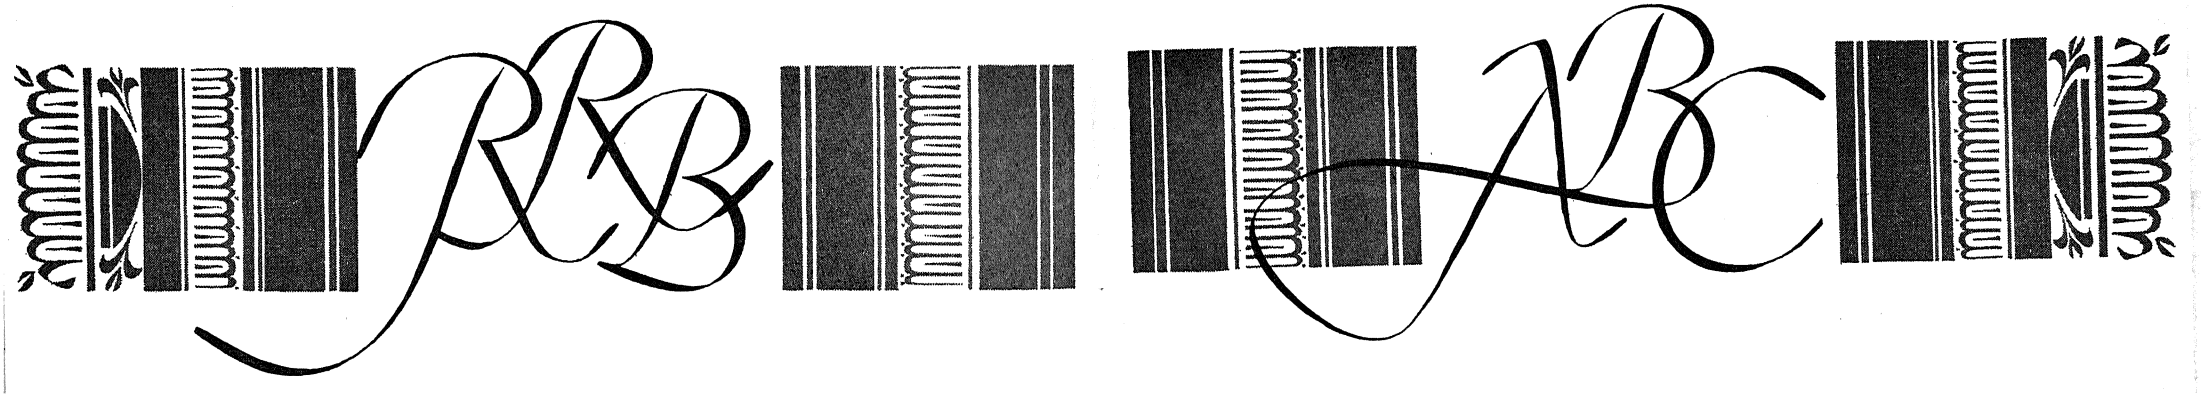

As an example of "rarer Americana" I would like to be able to trace the "Bay Psalm Book" from sale to sale, but only one copy has been sold and that was imperfect. Yes, it was sold in 1895; it fetched $425. The two editions of John Eliot's Indian Bible make a better story. The first edition was sold in 1895 for $450, but its rarity was soon recognized and when it appeared for sale in 1911 it fetched $1,250. In 1934 it reached a peak of $3,800 and copies sold in 1935 and 1937 brought $2,400 and $2,700 respectively. There were more copies of the second edition sold (I found thirteen records) and they ranged from $140 in 1895 to $1,750 in 1933. In 1939 a not quite perfect copy brought $900.

One of the most interesting sets of records on which I chanced (and the last of which I shall make note here) is George Washington's copy of his Official Letters. . . . It appeared first in 1895, when it brought a modest $1,650. It turned up next in Bishop Hurst's sale in 1902 and was bought for $2,810; finally it was sold in the William A. Read sale in 1936 for $9,800.

On the whole, I think it is safe to say that during the last fifty years prices of rare books have risen materially. This is true particularly of the genuinely rare books—of which there are relatively few. The books of momentary popular interest have jumped about madly with no rhyme and little reason. I wonder whether the same conclusion will be reached in the volume of American Book-Prices Current for 1995; probably a similar state of affairs will exist, for we don't seem to change much. We just become accustomed to paying more for what we get.

Early American SHEET MUSIC

Its Lure and Its Lore

1768-1889

by

HARRY DICHTER and ELLIOTT SHAPIRO

This volume is the most complete and detailed study that has yet been made of the fascinating field of sheet music, an area which has growing interest for collectors, print connoisseurs, musicians, and all students of American social and political history. It is common knowledge to collectors that thousands of fine copies of early music must still await discovery in obscure attics, basements and bookstores.

IMPORTANT PIECES OF EARLY MUSIC—Over 600 described with complete bibliographical details and classified by subject interest. Also descriptions of famous songs and songs of literary interest. Famous American musical firsts. Broadsides and periodicals with songs not in sheet music form.

SHEET MUSIC PUBLISHERS—A directory with notes outlining the history and successive addresses of famous imprints by which most undated music may be dated.

LITHOGRAPHERS AND ARTISTS—A list of those working on Sheet Music before 1870 arranged by cities. Compiled by Edith A. Wright and Josephine A. McDevitt.

32 PLATES reproducing rare early covers.

All titles included have been checked and are known to have survived in present day collections. Nearly a thousand pieces of the most sought for and significant items of more than a century of music publishing have been described.

Price $7.50

AMERICAN FIRST EDITIONS

Fourth Edition Revised

by JACOB BLANCK

"American First Editions," first issued in 1929 to become the daily guide of collectors, booksellers and students of literary history, has now been given most thorough and painstaking revision—a monument to American bibliography.

Nearly 200 authors from Philip Freneau to John Steinbeck are included and every one of the 10,000 titles has been rechecked in the revision, hundreds of new items added, disputed claims studied, missing details supplied. The books of each author are listed in chronological sequence, followe by pamphlet and ephemeral material, biographies and bibliographies. Each pertinent point for identifying first editions which research has developed is recorded.

GUIDE TO THE USE OF

American Book-Prices Current

Each entry is keyed in the following manner H(1) $270, which means Sale H, the first item of that particular sales catalog, price realized, $270.

On page XXI the key used to identify the sales of the season will be found which gives the date of the sale, the auction house handling the material, the owner, and a brief general description of the sale.

The items are indexed alphabetically by author, when known, otherwise by title or occasionally by subject (Trials, States, etc.). Under the author entry follow the books by title in alphabetical order. Detailed information as to the exact edition and condition of the specific copy sold is given. Press books and Club publications are under the name of the issuing Press or Club. Genealogies are listed under the family name or under the author.

Items selling below $5.00 are not included as such sales at auction do not establish a bona fide value for either dealer or collector.

Monographs on famous artists have been catalogued under the author's name (when known) and cross-indexed under the name of the individual artist. The collections of modern illustrated books have been treated in the same way, being cross-indexed under the names of individual twentieth century artists.

An explanation of abbreviations used follows this page. An asterisk (*) preceding an entry indicates that the item is illustrated in the sales catalog.

The 1941 volume of American Book-Prices Current carried detailed notes on the use of the series and index volumes which it is suggested the uninitiated consult.

Explanation of ABBREVIATIONS

SPECIAL NOTE: Items marked with an asterisk (*) preceding the descriptions are illustrated in the catalogue. An asterisk within a description merely separates two titles. For use of asterisk with sale key see page XLVI.
